Summary for Shakespeare: Tables I-III

PREFACE TO VOLUME II

The plan and general features of this study have been already set forth in the Preface and Introduction to Vol. I. It need only be said here that Vol. II. contains the collected data showing the remaining words of Shakespeare which are not found in the Bible, while Vol. I. contains all the Bible words, and, in parallel columns, those Shakespeare words which happen to be shared in common with the Bible. This arrangement of the work serves the double purpose of enabling the reader (1) to make quick comparison between vocabulary common to the Bible and Shakespeare as recorded in Vol. I. and (2) to command the vocabulary peculiar to the Bible (found in Vol. I) and that peculiar to Shakespeare (all of Vol. II).

Since the main purpose of this study is to find what proportion of the basic vocabulary of Shakespeare and the Bible is of Latin origin, Vol. II concludes with a summary of the collected data covering both volumes and showing the comparative language elements in the prose of the King James Version and the poetry of Shakespeare. This summary combines, in a series of tabulations, the partial summaries for all the data exhibited in the entire work.
